ABSTRACT

In general, in one aspect, the disclosure includes a description of a method that includes accessing network traffic metering data and controlling power consumption of individual ones of a set of network processor processing engines based on the metering data.